Baron Alphonse de Rothschild, head of the banking house of that name, president of the Bank of France died at his home in Paris on Friday last of acute bronchitis, aggravated by gout. The Baron was born in 1827, and has been a central figure in the financial affairs both of the old and the new world. Baron Rothschild was of a pleasing personality and was very popular. He gave many millions to public and private charities.

For nearly two months the business interests of the great city of Chicago have been disarranged and some of them entirely suspended, by reason of the teamster's strike. The evil has even extended to the lines of transportation passing through that city, and merchandise in transit delayed beyond the bounds of reason. These strikes are yearly becoming more frequent and harder to manage. The present strike emphasizes the need of a national board of arbitration with compulsory powers.

It would appear from recent events that one of the gravest menaces to human life in this country just now is travel by rail. The many recent railroad disasters, with death and horror following in their train, but serve to emphasize this fact. Just think of it! Over one thousand persons in this country have lost their lives by railroad accidents since the first of last January! One thousand lives sacrificed to a rivalry of competition and a greed of gain! It is frightful to contemplate. The secret of the greater number of these railroad disasters is that safety has been too much sacrificed to speed, and that for a country whose railways are subjected to so many and such sharp curves passenger trains are allowed to attain too great a speed for the safety of those who pay to ride in them. A better and safer plan is pursued in England and on the European continent.

The great battle at sea between the fleets of Russia and Japan was fought on Saturday and Sunday last and both engagements resulted in a thorough and complete victory for the Japanese. The result of this fight should bring peace, but the blind infatuation of the Czar and his nobles may cause them to still spring blindly forward to their undoing. Another result of this battle is that it places Japan in the front rank as a world power, and with the magnificent navy she will undoubtedly build with the immense indemnity of one billion dollars, Japan and China will dominate the orient and dictate their own terms to other nations holding concessions or possessions therein—the United States included.

LATEST.—By latest dispatches it appears the entire Russian fleet was destroyed. Twenty-two vessels were either sunk or captured. Admirals Rojesvinsky and Nabogotiff are captives in the hands of the Japanese.

Notice.

All those owing me will find their notes at Marion Bank for collection, and to save costs, had better call at once and pay them.

NOTICE.

To The Patrons of The Marion Light & Ice Company.

Section 4, Rule No. 6, of the National Board of Underwriters reads: "An approvable cut-out and switch must be placed as near as possible where the service wires enter the building. This cut-out and switch must be placed so as to be easily accessible in case of an electrical storm or other trouble."

This rule means that each person using electricity for light or power purposes "must," to be approved by the insurance company, have a fusible cut-out and switch, so that all lights in the building can be controlled from this switch. Our electricians will call to inspect and advise with patrons as rapidly as possible.

Mrs. Mack White Dead.

Mrs. Mack White died yesterday afternoon. She had been sick about a week. She was born in Crittenden county, Ky., April 1868, and died May 30, 1905, aged 37 years. Her parents were Newton and Martha Newcom. She first was married to Wm. Fowler. They had two children, both of whom are living. After Mr. Fowler's death she married Mack White. Of the two children by this last marriage only one is living. She professed religion in early life at Mt. Zion and joined the Methodist church.

Mrs. White was an earnest, faithful Christian woman. Her life has been one of toil and trial. Yet she has continued steadfast in her faith in Christ. In her last sickness she talked sweetly of heaven and the joys that awaited her. She said that she could be completely resigned if only her husband and children were prepared to meet her in glory. But her longing heart ran out for their salvation. She asked her sister to pray for them. She will be interred today in Mt. Zion cemetery, Rev. J. R. McAfee officiating.

The neighbors and friends of Mrs. White are to be commended for their assistance rendered in her afflictions and funeral preparations and for their thoughtfulness as kindly bestowed upon her family. These tender touches truly exhibit the spirit of Christianity.
